Student Network Access User Agreement Policy

Computer networks have been established for the enrichment of learning in the school. They provide students with the opportunity to prepare for the technological world in which we live. In addition to the vast educational resource base that may be accessed online, there exists material which may be pornographic, racist, or in other ways offensive.

This policy will address acceptable standards of use for students, and the responsibilities of the District, school, and individual teacher to prevent the misuse of these systems.

Please note that while this policy may seem extreme at first, it is really only extending to the computer the norms that already exist in the classroom.

The issue of "Hacking" is one that is covered in the Criminal Code of Canada, and thus for students own safety they should be made aware of these laws and the consequences for failing to comply with them.

Guidelines

Note that the school has the right, but not the obligation, to monitor and supervise all computer use, communication (e-mail, etc.), or system accounts within the school.

The network administrators will have the following authorities to be exercised in conjunction with the school principal:

- grant or revoke user accounts (which allow access to the computer network and GAFE)
- provide teacher supervision of students using network.
- allow use of specific computer applications (which computer applications allowed to be decided by individual schools)
- monitor which Internet sites are being accessed
- block access to certain Internet sites
- read all outgoing electronic information (i.e. e-mail).

Student Responsibility

The use of computers and networking is advantageous to the student, yet remains a privilege rather than a requirement. Therefore students are required to adhere to the following guidelines to maintain this privilege.

Computers are to be used for educational purposes only; World Wide Web searching and browsing shall be limited to appropriate sites. Further to this point:

- The Internet contains information which may be pornographic, racist, vulgar or otherwise offensive. The school will attempt to limit access to sites that contain offensive material. However, it is the responsibility of the student to not access or attempt to access sites containing prohibited information.
- Language in e-mail is to be of the same standard as other forms of communication. Therefore use of profane, harassing, or otherwise inappropriate language is forbidden.
- Harassment of other users in any way is forbidden. Use of anonymous email sites or any other method of disguising the source of the electronic communication is forbidden. Copyright laws are strictly followed by schools; accessing or storage of copyrighted software or information for which school does not have license is forbidden.
- Computers are expensive and fragile pieces of equipment. Extreme care should be taken so as not to damage them
- Students are responsible for their own accounts. System security relies on maintaining the secrecy of user's passwords; if a user's password is known to anyone else, that person should inform the Network Administrator and change his/her current password.
- Use of accounts by anyone other than registered account owner is prohibited. If an account is being used by someone other than registered user, both the unauthorized user and registered owner will have their computer privileges suspended.
- Students shall ensure that their accounts are used for lawful purposes only, and no material is transmitted which is prohibited, inappropriate, or infringes on rights of privacy further to the above guideline, students should not post information that would reveal their name, email address, home address or telephone number
- Users must refrain from changing desktop settings (i.e. wallpaper) and users should ensure they are logged off before leaving a computer location.
- Accessing or attempting to access any computer, network, or resource for which the student does not have authorization is strictly prohibited and will lead to immediate and permanent revocation of computer privileges.

Penalty for contravention of any or all of these guidelines will range from revocation of any/all computer privileges, and/or other disciplinary action including expulsion and/or criminal prosecution.

Media Consent

(Photography, Audio, Video and Media)

As 21st Century Learning Environments many educational institutions are embarking into the digital realm in both an informal and formal manner. Many students and teachers work with various types of digital media; such as voice recordings, digital images and video everyday in their classrooms.

From time to time, the local media may be invited to the school to videotape, photograph, record and/or interview students involved in school-related activities. In addition, schools in the NL English School District promote involvement in curricular and co-curricular activities by posting student photos and student artwork on its website, and/or newsletters, brochures or advertisements.

Schools in the NLESD also work closely with Eastern Health and the Healthy Students Healthy Schools Initiative to promote active and healthy living activities. Images may also appear in Eastern Health newsletters, brochures, advertisements or websites for Eastern Health and/or the Healthy Students Healthy Schools Initiative.

Please indicate your wishes regarding your child's involvement in the promotional activities mentioned above by completing the form attached and returning it to your child's homeroom teacher. Student names will not be used without express permission from the parent/guardian
